Mapping Communities

What is the OPEN Glasgow Community Map?
The OPEN Glasgow community map is about using and sharing Glaswegians' local knowledge of their community, for example; community centres, activities or sports. This will make it easier for everyone to access services in their local area.

Why does community mapping need to involve citizens?
The OPEN Glasgow community map has been created using Glaswegians' local knowledge and is available for everyone to use. People can focus on what is important to their community and keep the information up to date. This includes information about clubs, activities, and places of interest. For example, if you notice a new service in your local area, you have the power to add this knowledge to the map so that others can use this service as well.

Where does the content come from?
It comes from citizens like you, communities and organisations who share their local knowledge of the city. The map of services is made by the community, and for the community to benefit from.

What are the benefits of participating?
Participating in the OPEN Glasgow Community Map and sharing local knowledge empowers communities across the city. As the map is made by citizens of Glasgow, the services are up-to-date. Everyone has a chance to contribute to the mapping of their local community so that others can access and benefit from the services available.

How do you participate?
To add services to this map you will need to register first. Once registered you will be ready to add a service, which can be found on the menu bar. More information about contributing to the community map can be found in the user manual and video tutorial.

I just added a service, but I am unable to see this on the map?
New services need to be reviewed by the website moderator before being viewed on the map. You will receive an email notification once approved and available to view on the map.

What if I identify wrong or missing information on the map? For example incorrect opening hours or addresses?
Please contact us explaining the issue, highlighting all the missing/wrong information. We'll look into the issue and fix it as soon as possible.

What if I cannot remember my login details?
If you have forgotten your login details, please click here. Enter your email address and you will receive a new password by email.
